

THE RALEIGH NEWS

VOL. XIV-NO. 121

RALEIGH, N. C. THURSDAY MORNING, JANUARY 23, 1879.

$5.00 PER ANNUM

Senator Zebulon Baird Vance.
Yesterday the two houses of the General Assembly of North Carolina met in joint assembly and formally declared the election of ZEBULON BAIRD VANCE to the United States Senate for the term beginning March 4th, 1879, and ending March 4th, 1885. There is not, we hope, a manly heart in our glorious old commonwealth that will not thrill with joy at the glad tidings. The Democratic Legislature of 1879 has built for itself a lasting monument in the hearts of the true people of North Carolina. For eight long years have the Democratic party abided with enforced patience this day.

What was it the Governor of North Carolina said to the Governor of South Carolina?

"The upright Judge, the Christian gentleman." He is in bad company as the candidate of the Republican party.

What Mr. Everett Said of the "Coming Man."

[The omission of our Senate reporter to obtain a copy of Mr. Everett's remarks on the nomination of Judge Burton, is supplied to day by request.]

Mr. Everett said:

Mr. President and gentlemen of the Senate: I have the honor and the pleasure to present to this body, for the high position of U. S. Senator, a man whose name is a synonym for all that is pure and beautiful in private life and for all that is exalted and patriotic in public station; a man who is at once the generous friend, the learned judge with an immaculate ermine, a bold and triumphant tribune of the people's liberties, and homes, and a man who "carries the republic in his heart," the Hon. H. P. Buxton. His nomination, Mr. President, we leave an empty compliment, it is a solemn declaration on our part that politics in North Carolina shall not be a campaign of calumny and a malignant crusade against private character and the peace and loves of the home circle, but a grand conflict between principles and brains struggling to promote the unity and glory of our whole country.

A proud and fearless pronouncement to the world that out of republicanism a mighty tree of love for the Union could grow and flourish immortal, blossoming all over the down-the State, State hopes, State aspirations; a true and heroic devotion to North Carolina, her storied past, her present and her future.

[Mr. Everett is leading a "forlorn hope."]

REFORM.

The Voice of the People and the Press.

Wilmington Star.
If the Moffett liquor law is introduced into North Carolina and properly executed, it is safe to say that from one million to twelve hundred thousand dollars would be raised thereby annually. It is surely worth trying, and we hope the Legislature will frame carefully a bill and make it a law.

Douglas letter in Goldsboro Messenger.
A law to protect sheep by destroying dogs is of prime importance. Not that all dogs ought to be destroyed, but that all worthless may be marked and the sheep thereby be protected, and this important branch of industry encouraged. Surely, our representatives can frame a law which will be effective and yet just.

Wilmington Star.
The office of Superintendent ought to be abolished or made more efficient. It is nothing, really, but a clerkship as it is. If the Superintendent of Public Instruction does his duty and magnifies his office, he must be most of the time out of Raleigh. He ought to be as well paid as any other officer in the State Government except the Governor. His office is really as important in the capital as the capital, and can be made more useful, and a greater blessing to the State than any other.

Lincolnton News.

Every two years a book headed "Geology of North Carolina," is published at the expense of the State. It never gets into the hands of the people of the State, and it is a waste of the State's money, and it would not be understood by them if it was so read. It contains nothing that has not been published often before, and the greater part of it is copied from some body else's work. It is a cheap book, however, as every book is cheap that nobody will buy; and it only costs the State $5,000 a year to have it edited.

Lincolnton News.

First geological survey, $5,000; superintendent of agriculture, $2,000; analyzing of fertilizers at University station, and clerk hire which we put at $4,000, making $5,000. This sum is for services that are not worth $2,000 ought to perform. What benefit has this expenditure of money been to the people of the State? All these things belong properly to the agricultural department and ought to be run by one head.

Goldsboro Recorder.

Its hobby is retrenchment and reform and is of all hobbies, the one most pleasant to the people to see well rid of. It has been hard to make the descent from the liberal allowances of the extravagant days inaugurated by republican administration, some features of which commended themselves most acceptably to their Democratic successors. But the stubborn realities of an impoverished people, and high taxes waging from nearly exhausted resources have made the contrast between their poverty and high official emoluments too glaring to be sustained; so the pruning knife of the bosom of destruction are put to work relentlessly.

REFORM LEGISLATURE.

State Geologist.

Bills to the News.
The office of State Geologist was abolished to-day, as far as the action of the House goes, by an almost unanimous vote. I confess I view that measure with regret. The work of survey is at work of time, and one generation may not live to see its completion. Yet its labors in developing the hidden wealths of North Carolina and making them known to the world must redound to the good of the State, and it is a consequence abroad to be effects of no other. It is to be regretted that in the present political agitations have subsisted, an amount of population and investment of capital which will tell foiled repay what has already been expended.

Personnel of the House.

Raleigh Letter in Hillsboro Recorder.

Speaker Moring makes himself universally popular. Richardson of Union has a book out for his eighth session; a gentleman of pleasant manners and most popular deportment, with sound practical sense and extensive business acquirement; and was a prominent candidate for Speaker. Jones of Caldwell was also a prominent candidate for Speaker, an honor due to fine talents, ample acquirement, parliamentary aptitude, and a most earnest and impressive oratory; Vaughan of Alleghany, a man every way after my own heart, honest, earnest, practical, laborious and attentive to his duties; Carter of Buncombe, a young man of purpose, with talent, application, sound judgment, and intense devotion to the measures he advocates; and the scope of his interest is a wide and liberal one. Cobb of Lincoln, another young man, but of most brilliant promise, and himself singularly in all he undertakes, with a maturity of judgment, kindled by warmth of eloquence that makes him one of the most attractive and influential speakers in the House.

Among the new members that have been most conspicuous are C. M. Cooks of Franklin, who was also a candidate for the Speakership. He is now chairman of the Judiciary committee, and is one of the most able men in the House. Lockhart of Anson is a pleasant and a strong speaker; Board of Survey a man of cultured and learned taste; and among many Davis of Catawba graceful cultivated and well informed; Bernard of Pitt, Amis of Granville, Atkins of Buncombe, Etheridge of Bertie and others illustrate very favorably the character of the body. Among the many useful men who do not speak a great deal, but do a great deal of work and have much influence are Brown of Mecklenburg, and York of Wilkes, an old member and a man of sound judgment and practical qualities but without pretension to oratory. These are all on the Democratic side.

The Edmunds Resolutions taken up But not Discussed.

By Telegraph to the News.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.

SENATE.—The Naval appropriation bill was renewed. Blaine supported the amendments, that he yesterday gave notice that he would submit. Bick followed, claiming that Blaine's amendments could not be considered, as they were not in the original bill. The Senate, however, had considered them out of order, and in view of the objections, they were not submitted. The Naval bill was then passed. Blaine then introduced a bill to regulate promotions in the Navy. Referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs. (The provisions thereof are the same as the amendments discussed to-day.) Edmunds moved to take up his resolution in regard to the constitutional amendments. Mr. Thurman moved to adjourn, which motion was agreed to. Mr. Alexander of North Carolina, a member of the Committee of the House, moved to postpone the bill, and the motion was carried.

DAILY NEWS
THURSDAY..... JANUARY 23, 1875.

Old man Washington (Lucius Quintus) has been hanging round Washington puffing congressmen until he has got enough pledged to elect him Sergeant-at-Arms of the Senate.

The able editor of the Goldsboro Messenger always opposes Gov. Vance on personal grounds, but like the true Democrat he is, always supports him heartily when nominated by the party.

The power of the weekly press was never more felt in North Carolina than now. At the New's columns daily testify, it is dealing some telling blows in the people's fight against high taxes and official extravagance.

State Geologist.

A careful examination of Mr. Ford's bill to abolish the office of State Geologist in connection with the law establishing the Department of Agriculture sustains the wisdom of the proposed legislation. By reference to sec. 15, chap. 274 laws of 1876-77 it will be seen that the Department of Agriculture is fully equipped for the work of the Geological survey. The revenue derived from the sale of commercial fertilizers sustains that department. In this way a great and useful work is carried on without costing the tax-payers of the State one cent. Under the direction of this department the work of the geological survey can be prosecuted without the costly machinery of a separate Department. We do not deprecate Prof. Kerr's valuable services to the State, but the State does not lose his services by the contemplated change. Either the office of State Geologist ought to be abolished or the sections of the law to which reference has been made ought to be repealed. We quote:

"The department shall prepare a convenient hand book with the necessary illustrative maps, which shall contain all necessary information as to the mines, minerals, forest, soils, climates, waters, water powers, fisheries, mountains, swamps, industries, and all such statistics as are best adapted to give proper information of the attractions and advantages which this State affords to immigrants, and shall make illustrative exposition thereof whenever practicable at international exhibitions."

Sec. 7. The department [Agriculture] is authorized and directed to establish and keep in its office in the city of Raleigh, a general land and mining registry, wherein shall be recorded (if the owners shall request) all the farming, mineral or other lands offered for sale in this State, with a brief and truthful description of the same."

An Honest Way of Hard Living."

That's what Josh Billings calls farming. There is a kind of fancy farming that is confined to people who have money to throw away upon half dollar eggs, five dollar fowls and butter costing a dollar a pound. It is enough to make a farmer of the olden time turn in his grave to call that farming. It is a sort of playing at agriculture that may have its uses, but is not farming in the correct sense of the word.

The Brooklyn Eagle thus prefacing an interview with Mr. Gilbert, a former resident of Brooklyn, now a respected citizen of Irredell county. On the occasion of a recent visit to Brooklyn the Eagle had a talk with Mr. Gilbert in which the following ideas were brought out:

Q. What would you advise a person who contemplates going to North Carolina?

Mr. Gilbert. The country is different from what Northern people are accustomed to, and they may not expect to find everything as it is at home. But when they are once settled there, they have become acquainted with the people, they will find them very kind and neighborly. They are very glad to have people come in from the North and settle among them.

Q. What chance is there for a man with small capital?

Mr. G. A man cannot go down there without money and make an easy living any more than he can anywhere else. If he desires to go to farming, and has a thousand or two thousand dollars, he can do very well. But if he is industrial, he must work there as he would work elsewhere. If he is a good mechanic, carpenter, blacksmith or wheelwright, and has enough to start him in business, he will do very well and have all the work he can attend to. Really good mechanics are not plentiful and there is good opening in that direction. He can earn in idleness and make a living any more than he can in Brooklyn. The difficult part is, people get rose colored notions into their heads, and when they find the reality is not all their fancy painted it, they feel disappointed and injured. But the man who goes there with his eyes open and ready and expecting to use industry and thrift and enterprise will have no difficulty. He will did the people ready to assist him so far as lies in their power to do.

Q. What is the price of land?

Mr. G. Land is worth from five to twenty dollars per acre according to location, and the cost of building which often could not be reckoned for the price of the land. Real estate in the section where I live about Statesville—has not depreciated in value with the hard times, as it has in other sections of the country, but on the contrary is gradually increasing in value. The recent report of the Board of Agriculture says that North Carolina has more available resources than any other State in the Union. The only thing is, good energetic men to work it up, and to such there is a good opening offered. There are a number of Brooklyn mechanics in the western part of the State, and they are nearly all doing well. In the towns good mechanics are in demand. The rate of wages is not high, but the cost of living is low, and a good mechanic can very easily build up a home and a business of his own.

THE MOST PROFITABLE CROP.

Q. What do you consider the most profitable branch of farming?

Mr. G.—Raising grain is, I think, about the most profitable. The yield is excellent, and you can find a market right there in the State at about New York prices. The farmer sells his grain at home, and therefore is not taxed for freight and commissions, as are the Western farmers. If he understands his business, he can secure a good crop. I recollect one instance where a farmer sowed 15 acres of corn with wheat, and got 450 bushels of grain, barley. He has sowed the same field again this last fall, and feels confident that he will get 334 bushels to the acre, which, I think, will compare well with the yield in the best wheat growing States.

Q. How about the cost of farm labor?

Mr. G.—Prices range from $5 to $8 per month. The laborers are largely negroes, and have the defects which previous training and habits produce. They are not so good as white labor, but they do very well, and they have the advantage of being more familiar with the country.

Q. How is stock raising as a business?

STOCK RAISING.

Mr. G.—To persons with a capital of from $2,500 to $4,000, it affords a very good field. The majority of the stock is native, and of course cannot compete with improved breeds. Sheep can be purchased from fifty cents to $1.25 per head, according to quality, and cattle can be purchased at a very reasonable figure. Stock raising is an excellent way to improve land and bring it into a high condition of fertility. The winters are short and mild, and stock do not require very much extra care or feeding. There is always an excellent home market for beef and mutton, and with improved breeds a very profitable business can be built up. It takes more capital to carry on stock raising than other kinds of farming, but it is more profitable in the end. You have to wait a little longer for return than from other farm products, but when it does come it pays better. The land is well adapted to stock raising.

Q. Is the tobacco business a profit one?

Mr. G.—If a man has the right soil and the experience, it is a business requiring knowledge, good judgment and careful management. If you are successful it is profitable, but if you fail you fail utterly. It is not a good thing for a greenhorn to take hold of.

Q. You think, then, that general farming is safer and more profitable to a man who has not had experience in stock breeding?

Mr. G.—Most certainly it is. North Carolina is a very good State and affords especial advantages, but it is not a paradise for idlers, any more than any other section of the country. The man who goes there with the idea that he can make a fortune in a short space of time, with very little work, will be grievously disappointed, for he will find out his mistake very soon. But if he is willing to use the same energy and tact and enterprise, he can make a success upon little capital. If a man has not the capital to buy land and stock in the can, he has the talents of very good management. The man who is very industrious for earnest, energetic men, and we are very glad to have them come. If anyone desires to emigrate thither, they can secure favorable rates of transportation, and once there, he will find people ready and glad to assist him in finding a suitable place to settle. It is a splendid country, but it is a country for men who want to earn a living. The land is easy to work and there is plenty of good timber."

Mr. Gilbert is right. Intelligent and enterprising men find congenial homes among the study people of North Carolina, and these are the very men who look with suspicion upon a community that evades the payment of its obligations. Their argument is, that the State that will cheat its creditors will wrong its own citizens, and that members of the Legislature, and the community at large, will be more honest and scrupulous in their dealings as individuals than in their conduct towards those who are the creditors of the whole State.

Mr. Gilbert is to be commended for his honest, frank and intelligent opinions in regard to North Carolina. The writer happens to know that Mr. Gilbert is an industrious, thrifty and highly respected citizen of Irredell county. More like him would prove a blessing to the State.

Q. What would you advise a person who contemplates going to North Carolina?

Mr. Gilbert. The country is different from what Northern people are accustomed to, and they may not expect to find everything as it is at home.

But when they are once settled there, they have become acquainted with the people, they will find them very kind and neighborly. They are very glad to have people come in from the North and settle among them.

Q. What chance is there for a man with small capital?

Mr. G. A man cannot go down there without money and make an easy living any more than he can anywhere else.

If he desires to go to farming, and has a thousand or two thousand dollars, he can do very well.

But if he is industrial, he must work there as he would work elsewhere.

Q. What is the price of land?

Mr. G. Land is worth from five to twenty dollars per acre according to location, and the cost of building which often could not be reckoned for the price of the land.

DAILY NEWS

SUNRISE IN AMERICA.

The New York Herald of Wednesday, speaking upon the English finding and trade situation as developed by its own correspondent, draws in even a long picture of the immediate and final future of the United States which we append. It is pleasant to look through clouds on a golden landscape.

Nevertheless, what but their own folly and perversity should hinder the American people from becoming the wealthiest and most prosperous of nations? constrain the government to honest and constitutional expenditure, so that what we should spend in the dubious military waste of the old world would alone bring that about. Add to the economical facilities of our position, its warlike and unparalleled productive capacities, and a magnificent and unexampled development of wealth and material power inevitable, unless we are guilty of suicidal folly and wickedness. The Herald says:

For thirty years England has enjoyed an amazing prosperity. The repeal of the Corn laws enabled her people to buy food cheaply, and her enterprise made her mistress of the commercial and financial world. The dominion was challenged by the United States. Twenty years ago the United States was steadily advancing on England, especially in maritime supremacy. Then came our civil war, and in ten years America fell from her high rank as a commercial and financial nation into the lowest rank. England in the hour of our trouble did all she could to help the Southern people, destroy the commercial and financial supremacy of the Union. We should not complain, as there is an adage that there is no affection in business. If England through the folly of our people could take away our trade, it was not in human nature to suppose she would not press her advantage. The civil war left England mistress of the seas—arbiter of the world's finance; supreme in such great industries as iron, cotton, clay, wool and woods; prepared to sell the world everything at a profit, carry everything at a good freight rate, and exchange money at a fair commission.

If the world could have gone on in this fashion, doing all the business and the rest of it, provided food, and raw material, to us, we might have turned out otherwise. But America did not mean to remain in the subordinate relation imposed upon her by the war. It will be a matter of surprise to demagogues and Communists to know that since the war America has been making such strides in enterprise and prosperity as to menace the supremacy of England. In other words, while these demagogues have been blathering and lying and going about the country trying to make mischief and ruin our crest, the honest patriotic work of our classes have been steadily lifting the nation into its proud, supreme position.

What a commentary upon the insincerity and baseness and imbecility of so much that is known as "statesmanship" among our public men! In iron we have multiplied our product twelvefold. We now send iron abroad, where before we were the principal importers of iron. This underlies the depression in the English iron trade.

In cotton we are beginning to dispute England's supremacy. Twenty years ago, England monopolized the trade. India, China, and the United States were her great markets. Now we make our own cotton. In China we are driving out England, because we make better and cheaper goods. India makes her own cloth and raises her own cotton, and soon will be in the Chinese and American markets. As a consequence the cotton trade in England is depressed. What is worse, it is a depression from which there is no recovery. English business men see that their boastful invincibility was a sham, and that once America has got out of the doldrums and distress and depression, it is not a pleasure to our people. We would much rather that our triumphs were not won at the expense of other nations. Distress in Lancashire throws a shadow over prosperity in England, which sweeps to the grave at least one-third of all death's victims, arises from the Opium or Morphine temptation, which is the curse of the working classes. Millions will be paid if Opium or Morphine, or any preparation of Opium, Morphine or Prussic Acid, can be taken away from the market. The Hon. Alexander H. Stephens, Gov. Smith and others are in full agreement with us, as well as of those other remarkable men who have called for the same. The cure for the disease of the working classes, let me assure you, can be taken away by taking Hepatitis in accordance with the directions of Dr. C. McLane, spelled differently but same pronunciation.

WE'VE GOT THE LAND, WE'VE GOT THE BRAINS, AND WE'VE GOT THE MONEY TOO.

So far as this affects the happiness of the working and business classes in England, bringing distress and depression upon them, it is not a pleasure to our people. We would much rather that our triumphs were not won at the expense of other nations.
